AIR has come to Mercer County Community College a number of times and each time the feedback from students has been extremely positive.

The In Their Shoes display has been presented at our last two Mental Health Wellness Fairs. It's compelling to watch students examine the display and start the conversation. Getting everyone talking about mental health and suicide is the first step to making a positive and significant difference. I've been very pleased with the influence this has had on our students.

The AIR dogs have come on campus numerous times during Wellness Fairs and most especially at exam time. Every time the dogs are on campus students are eager to sit with a dog and take a quiet moment.

I'm pleased to have found AIR and to partner with them to bring awareness, help students manage college stress and start the conversation. Both programs have positively impacted our students. I look forward to a continued relationship.
